DISPLAY GUIDELINES

Following the launch of our new collections at the Paris Motorshow 2014, the following display imagery should be used as a guide to how to display merchandise in showrooms.

In addition, two retail solutions are also available for dealers to order as both a full site refit, which requires wall and floor mounted units and a flexible free standing solution for retailing branded goods within current dealer architecture. Both variants are included below and can be ordered by registering and visiting <https://jlr.principledirect.com>

The correct presentation of branded goods is important. Below is an outline of Do's and Don'ts when displaying our ranges.

Do

- Ensure t-shirts and polo shirts are either hanging on coat hangers or folded to show the logo and product detail
- Display jackets on coat hangers
- All hanging clothing should be on white wooden coat hangers
- Group linked products together as collections or styles
- Ensure displays are visible in the main showroom areas
- Place cabinets against a wall or free standing
- Ensure cabinets and merchandise is always clean
- Replenish any empty spaces in the displays
- Use pricing blocks alongside branded goods items
- Direct customers to find displays

Don't

- Position cabinets in obscure positions which are hidden from view
- Mix branded goods together with accessories items in displays
- Leave broken display items on display
- Show incorrect pricing

Part Number Convention

To support dealers placing orders where a size derivative needs to be added to the part number shown in the brochure, please follow the following instructions.

Select the part number in question e.g. 51LRMPOLOWHCR for the Men's Polo Shirt White.

Add the single or double letter (XS to XXXL) or number (8 to 18) abbreviation for size as needed to the end of the part number.

E.g. for a Large size, add L to the end of the selected part number so that the part number reads 51LRMPOLOWHCL. This then reflects the correct part and size required.

Exception: Land Rover Men's Polo Grey XXXL should be replaced with 3XL when ordering.
